Vijender has the spark and desire for pro circuit: Trainer

New Delhi

Convinced about Vijender Singh's ability to sparkle in the gruelling arena of professional boxing, his UK-based trainer Lee Beard and promoter Francis Warren today said the Indian has what it takes to make it big there as his natural ability goes beyond the amateur level. Vijender, India's first Olympic and World Championships medalist, turned professional earlier this month signing up with the UK-based Queensberry Promotions — a deal facilitated by his India managers Infinity optimal Solutions (IOS). "It is not about signing an Indian boxer, it is about signing Vijender. I think he is a terrific boxer, his talent and natural ability goes beyond amateur boxing," Queensberry's Francis Warren told reporters in a press conference here Tuesday. "He has given 17 years to amateur boxing where he won many medals from Olympics, to Asian Games to Commonwealth Games. It is his personality, he has got a fire in his eyes. Now he is turning pro and I think every Indian should get behind him," he added.

Vijender would be making his professional debut in September even though his opponent is yet to be decided. Warren said Queensberry will be looking to spread its India presence and would also try to ensure live coverage of Vijender's bouts by striking TV deals here. "Commercially also it makes sense because he has been hugely successful. There are many amateurs in India and We will be trying to get find out the hidden gems in India and give back to Indian boxing," he said. "Vijender will be training in Manchester from September and in next 14 months he will be busy with his fights, six of them, and hopefully he will come out with six wins and we can have his first fight in India in July next year," Warren added.

"We are trying to sort out TV deals so that the whole of India can watch him live." Vijender's trainer Lee Beard, whose wards include British professional legend Ricky Hutton, said he is confident about Vijender making a huge splash in the circuit.

Focus is on NBA, can't play for India in next 2 years: Satnam

New Delhi

India's basketball sensation Satnam Singh Bhamara made it clear that he won't be available for national duty atleast for the next two years as his primary focus is to improve his game and make it to the first team of the NBA side Dallas Mavericks.

India have qualified for the FIBA Asian Championships to be played in Hunan (China) from September 3 but Satnam clearly mentioned that his "focus is on NBA for next two years". "I won't be playing (Asian Championship) for India for the next two years. My focus is solely on NBA. I have to improve my game and then get into the first team. May be after another two years when I establish myself. I will again play for India. The main goal is to atleast play 10 years in NBA league," the 7 feet 2 inches sensation told Indian journalists via conference call from Dallas. Satnam sounded upbeat having made his NBA Summer League debut for the Mavericks. "I did not feel any pressure nor was I nervous. The only thing I was telling myself "Aa toh gayaa hoon, pahla aadmi India se. Ak baar dekh le kaise hota hain (I have come here as first Indian but it was time for reality check). My assessment is that in terms of power, I am as good as the Americans. Where I am lacking is balance. The coaches are working on that aspect. I have a weak knee. I am doing strengthening exercises," said Satnam.

Asked how more Indian cagers could come into NBA, Satnam said, "The NBA academy in Mumbai has talent scouts. If someone is good, he will certainly be called in future. As far as current Indian players are concerned, they need to work doubly hard on their fitness. They need to first become slimmer. Look at someone like LeBron James. He is so slim. If you have a slim body, it will improve both power and pace. "Playing yesterday, I could gauge the difference in my game. The pace is in a different league. I have never ran up and down the court at such pace. Whenever I was out of breath, the coach replaced me and then again put me back.

Faulkner banned over drink-driving charge

London

World Cup winner James Faulkner will miss Australia's limited overs matches against England and Ireland after Cricket Australia (CA) banned the all-rounder for drink-driving. The 25-year-old faces a court hearing in Manchester next week after being charged with drink-driving by Greater Manchester Police while playing for English county side Lancashire. CA said Faulkner had been punished for "conduct that is unbecoming of a representative and that is or could be harmful to the interests of cricket".

way of the football world," ITAR-TASS news agency quoted Capello's assistant Oreste Cinquini as saying in comments translated into Russian. "But we don't have any hard feelings towards the RFU."

Capello has come under increasing pressure following a dismal run of results and the team's lacklustre performances in Russia's Euro 2016 qualifying campaign. Russia have just two wins to their name from six matches in qualifying Group G — a 4-0 home victory over Liechtenstein last September before being awarded a 3-0 victory from the abandoned clash against Montenegro in Podgorica in March. They have been held at home by minnows Moldova and suffered two defeats to group leaders Austria.

Russia sack Capello as national team coach

Moscow

Russian's Football Union (RFU) today dismissed Fabio Capello as national team head coach, ending the Italian's three years in charge after a string of disappointing results.

"The Russian Football Union and the head coach of the national team, Fabio Capello, have mutually agreed to terminate his employment contract," the union said in a statement. "The RFU sincerely thanks Capello for his work as the country's national team head coach and wishes him success in his future professional activity." Capello — who is reported to be the highest-paid coach in international football — took over the Russian team in 2012 and took them to the 2014 World Cup before being given a lucrative new contract to stay in the job through to the end of the 2018 World Cup, which Russia will host. The former England boss is expected to come to Moscow tomorrow to formally end his contract with the RFU.
